NaSure® key benefits

- Natural
- Extending product shelf-life
- Securing quality and prevention of rancidity
- Effectively protecting palatability, essential fatty acids, colour pigments and vitamins
  - Purified extracts highly suitable for animal nutrition applications
  - Optimized for specific systems
- Enhanced antioxidant distribution using liquid or dry delivery systems

From NATURE to NaSure

Rising demand for healthy, nutritious, and natural products greatly impact the animal nutrition market and the antioxidants, which manufacturers are likely to prefer.

Natural mixed tocopherols have a good image and are obviously very important, because animal fats and oils contain only trace amounts of tocopherols, if any. A considerable shelf-life extension can be achieved with natural mixed tocopherols, however, there is a limit.

Rosemary extract (carnosic acid) is a highly important antioxidant today and will further add to the shelf-life beyond what natural mixed tocopherols can provide. The rosemary extract from CFS is carefully controlled in terms of purification, solubility and low impact on palatability. The functionality of carnosic acid is very different compared to the mixed tocopherols.

Combined, they provide a potent solution which has proven its value in the market.

We are part of Camlin Fine Sciences since 2011

In 2011, CFS Europe became part of Camlin Fine Sciences Ltd Group (a public company listed on the Mumbai Stock Exchange since 2007), with a shareholding that guarantees the European company the majority.

Since then, we have significantly progressed in research and production processes. As a result, our consolidated company currently presents serious and lasting results and opens to new industries and markets like Asia and EMEA.

Our vertical production includes four macro-categories of products:

- Additives for feed and food use, specifically antioxidants
- High-performance chemicals
- Chemical ingredients intended for health and well-being
- Flavours and fragrances
